

Groundwater in a Changing World Panel

Ms Erika Korosi

Lead Water Stewardship at BHP

Erika's has over 20 years of experience spanning engineering, operational management, business improvement, corporate affairs, climate change, corporate philanthropy, sustainable finance and sustainability strategy. She has supported operations across Australia, Asia, South and North America and Africa and is passionate about demonstrating that a sustainable business can deliver both shareholder and societal returns.

Erika has successfully influenced company-wide strategy and external policy through her ability to develop a shared understanding, both internally and externally with senior leadership and employees through to investors and not for profits.

Erika has been instrumental in establishing and leading BHP's water stewardship strategy. This is a strategy that is as much about driving internal performance as it is about advocating for improved water governance, and in doing so seeks to enhance business value and resilience while also delivering enduring environmental and social outcomes more broadly.
